Rare students amaze in EU capital

Our students travelled in Brussels in November, to showcase a new, original production of 'A westside story' the demonstrated the school's talent, diversity and excellence.

Last week, the students travelled as part of the OperaQ project, to the home of the European Union to showcase their performance to members of the community and key figures from across the European union.

The OperaQ project is funded by the EU Grunddivig fund and is meant to develop a learning approach, which is intergenerational and intercultural; this supports the social integration of vulnerable people from a range of disadvantaged backgrounds. The fund is working with groups in Liverpool, Brussels and Italy. Rares Studios aim in the project is to take talented young people from a range of backgrounds and work with them to create a brand new version of Westside Story based on their experiences. These young people would have never had this opportunity to work together and develop without this key funding.

The students worked with experts from the performing arts industry including actors, script writers, musical directors and choreographers to create new songs, scripts and dances for the performance.

The show was first performed in July 2015 at the Black-e in Liverpool, to a standing ovation. The young people – aged 11-18 were then invited to perform a portion of the show in Brussels in November. In total 18 young people travelled to Brussels with 3 teachers to perform in outstanding theatre 'Masion de Cultures'. Some of the young people had never travelled abroad and the experience of travelling on the Eurostar to a brand new city, was life changing and motivational.
